10 things you need to know about... GABRIELLA WILDE

That's not her real name. "My real surname [Anstruther-Gough-Calthorpe] is hard to say, so my agent and I changed it," says the 21-year-old actress. "I thought about using my mother's maiden name Hubbard, but in the end, I just picked Wilde, after Oscar Wilde, out of a bookcase!"

Despite her society pedigree, she's no it-girl. (Her half-sister is actress Isabella Calthorpe and half-brother Jacobi is pals with Prince Harry.) "I rarely go out and when I do, it's not to the opening of this, that and the other. I prefer hanging out in a random bar with friends or watching movies."

Naomi Campbell recognised her potential. "I started modelling when I was 14 – my first shoot was with Isabella Blow. I then met Naomi at a party and she took some Polaroids of me, which she gave to her agency. She was amazing to me."

Modelling wasn't for her. "I did do some interesting things – for Lacoste, I jumped on a trampoline in ski clothes in the desert! But I didn't like the lack of creative input. As a model, everything is decided for you. As an actor, you decide who you think the character is."

A stint at art school followed. "I went to art college. I love painting, but the minute I actually had to do it, I just didn't want to any more."

She had fun on St Trinian's 2. "It was my first film and it was amazing. Juno Temple has become one of my best friends and Tamsin Egerton is lovely. I'm definitely happier now I'm acting, not modelling."

You'll soon be seeing her in The Three Musketeers. "My character Constance is the queen's lady-in-waiting. It was filmed in Germany, so it felt a lot different to filming in London, where everyone goes home each day. When you're in another country, you become closer."

On set, she bonded with James Corden. "Orlando Bloom was very friendly and Milla Jovovich was so attentive and caring, but I spent the most time with James Corden. He's hilarious, although he did tease me constantly!"

She loves a vintage vibe. "I'm not a fashionista – I mostly wear jeans. I like vintage shops – I go to Fara in London Victoria. I've also inherited some great Eighties stuff from my mum – Chanel coats and an amazing Versace leather jacket."

She's a hippie at heart. "After I quit modelling, I went travelling round Kerala and Goa for a month with my sister. It was incredible!"
